HELPING YOUR LOVED ONES THROUGH A HOUSING TRANSITION

Moving at any juncture in your life can be overwhelming, especially for our senior citizens. I have grandparents, many relatives, past clients and friends that I have helped in the daunting task of selling their beloved family home. It's not an easy time, and I fully understand the emotional and financial impact of such a transition.

I am a full time agent with nine years of experience and over $60 million real estate transaction volume dedicated to providing the best possible experience to everyone I serve. I have the tools, patience and market knowledge to get you through the sale of your home.

A proven track record along with my expert marketing and reach allows me to protect your families interests every step of the way. You, my client, are the first and most important part of any transaction, and an open line of communication with regular updates and a solid plan will provide the results you seek. I will take the confusion and guesswork out of this process for you and your loved ones.
